STATISTICAL INFORMATION

AND

SUMMARY OF EVENTS.

It was the original design of the compiler of this work, to embrace within its pages a synoptical history of Sacramento, reviewing and correcting that published in the last edition, and tracing events up to the present day; but the experience obtained in collecting the prominent material of which it is composed, convinced him that the design was impracticable.

Sacramento contains too much history to justify an imperfect condensation. Her trials, her triumphs, and her glories have become the theme of millions, and her fame, therefore, is composed of more elements than a mere chronological table could present.

Her progress in useful enterprises, which has excited this just admiration, requires him who would take upon himself the office of a historian, to perform a greater work than only to name her achievements; he must enter into an analysis of the causes which produced them, and the effect which must legitimately grow out of them.

At some future period, not far remote, unless some better person should take upon himself the arduous responsibilities involved in such an undertaking, he may embark in a work of the kind. Indeed, at the present time, it is one of his cherished ideas, which he hopes to be able to carry to a successful fruition.

It may be proper to add, that the delay of this work has been occasioned by a desire to include among the descriptions of public improvements, those which had been resolved upon, but not sufficiently matured to be put in detail before the public. Of these were the Court House, Gas Works, Congregational Church, and other edifices highly calculated to beautify the city. Business changes were also taking place, daily, and until the season advanced were likely to do so; so that an earlier publication of the Directory would have revealed it much less accurate than it is at present.

CONFLAGRATIONS.

In the aggregation of human calamities, California seems to have been destined to the scourge of conflagration. So frequent and appalling had visitations of this kind become to San Francisco, that the eyes of all other communities were directed thither, in forgetfulness of exposures to like danger at home. Sacramento had enjoyed especial immunity, and deriving from that fact an ill-timed confidence, neglected those essential preparations against the hour of affliction, in which she could alone have expected safety, and which, unprovided, was the cause of her subsequent annihilation.

On the night of the 2d of November, 1852, between the hours of ten and eleven o'clock, an alarm of fire was sounded in the streets, and having been caught up by the different church and steamboat bells, was prolonged till the whole city became aroused to a sense of impending ruin. The flames were first discovered issuing from a frame building occupied by Mrs. Lanos, as a dry goods store, on the north side of J street, a few doors west of Fourth. A fresh breeze springing up, wafted them across the street, and fired the buildings immediately opposite. The engines—such as they were at that time—repaired at once to the spot; but for want of hose, water, and other necessary appliances of the department, were enabled to render but trifling service. So rapid was the spread of the fire, and so intense its heat, that step by step they were forced to retreat before it, until they were driven entirely beyond its reach.

The wind now hightened to a gale, and catching the sparks as they were borne high in air, carried them into distant portions of the city, and dropped them among inflammable material, where, in turn they communicated their destructive power to other buildings, and added to the terror of the awful panorama, by presenting detached walls of flame in a dozen different localities.

It is hardly necessary to particularize the effects of this ruinous conflagration, when so many spectators, not to say victims, of its fury, survive to recount the records of devastation. Among the public edifices destroyed, were the Crescent City Hotel; the splendid Overton Block, on J and Third streets; the Orleans Hotel; the printing office of the Democratic State Journal, a portion of the Union office; the fine new brick Methodist Church, on 7 & ——— street; besides others of less cost and celebrity. Mr. Lyons was killed by the falling of Reynolds & Co.'s brick store; a Mr. Woodward was burned in Dawson's Hotel; a sick woman perished in the Crescent City Hotel; several persons were missing, besides a large number severely burned and wounded, while employed in efforts to save property and arrest the progress of the flames.

Of the buildings situated in the midst of the conflagration, which survived destruction, were the frame Congregational Church, on Sixth street, the fire-proof brick of Bushnell & Co., the fire-proof brick of J. Madison, of Watson & Biscoe, and the fire-proof brick of Bruce & Co., on J street; the fire-proof brick of the "Lady Adams Co.," and Stanford & Bros., on K street.

The boundaries of the fire, where a general devastation was wrought, were from Second street on I, up to Ninth, (excluding all the buildings on the north side of I;) along Ninth to L; down L, (omitting several buildings) to Front; along Front, (omitting Bruce's building) to the place of beginning—embracing the very heart of the city.

Various estimates were made of the loss, from three to five millions of dollars.

Having continued violently through the night of the 2d, on the morning of the 3d of November, the gale from the north-east increased in fury, till it became equally afflictive with the most pernicious Italian serocco. Clouds of ashes, dust and splinters were tossed into people's eyes, blinding and inflaming them almost beyond endurance. Families of women and children rendered houseless, sat shivering beside the few effects which their industry had rescued from the general havoc, and so heart-stricken was the unanimous population, that the gloom of death pervaded everywhere throughout the day.

On the morning of the 4th of November, however, the sun shone out bright and glorious. The appalled heart recovered its strength and hopefulness; the builders went to work; and the monuments of their enterprise have told a joyful story, which it is needless for us here to repeat.

CONFLAGRATION OF JULY 13, 1854.

A SECOND destructive fire visited Sacramento on the 13th of July, 1854, occurring between 12 and 1 o'clock of the day time. It originated by the upsetting of a pot of varnish, or some other inflammable material, at a shop in the rear of the Sacramento Hotel, between K street and the alley dividing it from J, on a parallel line. 4 + 5th Sts

The course of the flames were in a north-east direction, crossing J street, and destroying nearly all the frame buildings in its progress to Seventh, on I. But two brick buildings suffered material damage from its effects, viz: the Engine House of No. 4, which had not—so recent was its construction—been yet furnished with iron doors or shutters, and the Court House. Over two hundred frame houses were burned to the ground, and a vast amount of goods consumed. The Crescent City Hotel went again by the board, as also the Lake House, (formerly Oriental Hotel) and New England House, on I street, the splendid brick Court and State House, on the same street; the Congregational Church, on Sixth street, and the Dawson House, on Fourth street.

Fortunately the Fire Department was in a much better condition to resist the flames than on the 2d of November of '52, and nothing was left undone which superhuman efforts could accomplish to effect that result. The Water Works were in successful operation, and a copious supply of water furnished to the different plugs, so far as those useful supply pipes have yet been constructed, from which the different engines were constantly furnished.

Although a severe dispensation in view of the city's numerous afflictions, this last great fire cannot be said to have worked any serious permanent injury. But few months have passed, and with the exception of an occasional gap on J, and one or two on the cross streets, a stranger could hardly tell that such an event had transpired. Indeed, so many splendid brick edifices have since gone up, that it would hardly be venturing too much to say, that in point of architectural beauty, at least, the city has been a gainer by the calamity.

Estimated loss between three and four hundred thousand dollars.

CITY WATER WORKS.

To Sacramento belongs the honorable distinction of having erected the first edifice and machinery in California for supplying her citizens and the Fire Department, with water. In the very midst of her afflictions, the project was conceived, when as yet, large portions of her corporate limits presented the sad spectacle of eligible building lots, covered only with the ruins of conflagration, and when the city debt had attained a magnitude almost beyond the ability of prospective liquidation. But the public voice demanded the improvement, and as the burden of the responsibility was to be assumed in their name, the municipal authorities at once proceeded to the adoption of measures to secure it.

In addition to the abundance of fresh water which a work of the kind proposed, would at all times bring to the very doors of families for domestic uses, it was contended by the friends of the measure, that its revenues must prove four-fold over and above the original cost, and that on the ground of pecuniary advantage alone, if it presented none other, it was called for in the existing embarrassed condition of the city finances. Besides, it had been clearly shown during the great conflagration of the night of the 2d of November, 1852, that the few cisterns scattered about the streets of the city, were entirely inadequate to the supply of the engines, which deprived the firemen of their vocation at a time when the flames raged fiercest, and rendered them powerless to allay their fury.

Several plans for the construction of a Public Water Works had been suggested to the Common Council. Among others, a proposition to conduct a stream ten miles, by means of canal, from a point on the American river, into a reservoir to be erected on the high ground, two or three miles east of Sacramento, known as "White's Ridge." A reconnoisance of the route was made by the members of the Council, in propria personæ, who, for various good and sufficient reasons, came to the conclusion that the enterprise was not advisable. A short time subsequent, proposals were issued for letting the work out by contract, and taken by Mr. John Kirk, who proceeded to comply with their terms in the manner herein below described.

The site of the City Water Works, is a narrow point of land, bounded on the west by Front street, on the north and east by Sutter Lake, and on the south by I street. Mr. Kirk commenced the work on the 19th of October, 1853, by digging a receiving reservoir of ample dimensions, extending five feet below the tide water and 35 feet below city grade. This was secured from leakage and the danger of caving in, by a suitable brick wall. 400 piles of Oregon pine were next driven, four feet wide, to an average depth of 20 feet, as a foundation, embracing an area of 50 by 125 feet, on which were erected firmly knit brick walls, 35 feet in hight, surmounted by the principal reservoir from which the city draws its supplies, with capacity for 240,000 gallons of water, and a fall of 40 feet to the grade of J street. The first story of the main building is subdivided by five interior or partition walls, four feet in width, with corresponding divisions to the second story, supported by 24 inch walls. Nothing could surpass the brick masonry work for strength and solidity, each layer being grouted and put down in cement.

In the rear of the main edifice, and directly on the south bank of Sutter Lake, is the engine house, 30 by 65 feet, substantially erected of brick, which also covers the receiving reservoir. The engine is of 20 horse power, from the manufactury of Burdin & Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., and a highly finished piece of workmanship. Its pumps, two in number, have 14 inch cylinders, with two feet stroke, and are capable of throwing up 50,000 gallons of water per hour, to a hight of 200 feet. These were manufactured by Fulton & Co., San Francisco. Surrounding the reservoir, on the top of the building, is a promenade portico, three feet wide, with ornamental wrought iron balustrades, from which an extensive and delightful view of the city and adjoining country, may be had.

From the receiving reservoir of this building, a cast iron suction pipe of 13 inches diameter, and connected with the pumps, traverses the bottom of Sutter Lake by a subterranean ditch, till it passes out into the middle of the Sacramento river, where it obtains a volume of comparatively clear water—above and free from all impurities engendered and cast off from the city by its plan of drainage. This water, in turn, is forced through a pipe of like caliber into the main reservoir, from which it is again emptied into other submerged pipes through the principal streets and alleys of the city, for an aggregate distance of over six miles. It is useless to explain how, by a system of plugs and hydrants, the water is thus furnished to the hose of the Fire Department, and brought home to the very kitchen and business house of the resident.

The noble edifice which we have been describing, is not simply a Water Works. Indeed, the mere casual observer might pass in at one door and out at the other, till he had traversed each of its numerous compartments, without for a moment suspecting it had been erected with such a design. He would find on one portion of the ground floor, the reception room to a suite of prison cells, so massive and gloomy in their appearance, as to shut out all hope of escape to those who are so unfortunate as to become the chained culprits of outraged justice.

In another he would notice a spacious, unoccupied enclosure, suitable for a public market, a carriage house, a receptacle of merchandise, or any similar purpose, to which the city fathers may see proper to devote it. Ascending to the second story, he would find a Council Chamber, a Police Court, an office for the Mayor, Superintendent of the Water Works, for the City Marshal, City Treasurer, Surveyor, Asssessor and his Deputies, besides others too numerous to particularize—the whole presenting an economy of genius at once admirable as it is useful and convenient.

Having said thus much of the Sacramento Water Works, we should feel remiss in duty if we did not improve the opportunity to speak a word in praise of its builder. At the time Mr. Kirk took the contract, there was good reason to doubt whether, with all her willingness and honesty of purpose, the obligations of the city, immediately and collaterally, could be promptly discharged. It required an amount of moral courage to run the risk, to which Mr. Kirk proved unhesitatingly equal, and at once assumed all its binding responsibilities. Although delayed some time in entering upon the work, when he did commence it, the admirable nature of his preparations, inspired general confidence in the perfect manner with whicn it would ultimately be discharged. Not a stick of timber was driven into the ground, not a brick laid down, nor a wall erected, but was done in truly workmanlike style, and with a determination on the part of Mr. Kirk, to be just to his employers. There were, to be sure, one or two slight contingencies which could not be forseen, and which required subsequent adjustment, but not arising from any inefficiency on the part of the contractor, or failure in the compliance of his obligations. So long as this work stands, however, it will be, not only a blessing to the city, but an architectural monument to Mr. Kirk's genius, of which he may well be proud.

PLANKING STREETS.

A MEMORABLE act of the Council of 1853 was the determination arrived at, and subsequently executed, of grading and planking the principal business streets of the city. A contract for this purpose was awarded to Mr. S. W. Lovell, who, before he had got much more than half through with the work, failed, and cast the burden of its completion upon his securities—Messrs. Spalding, Hastings and Swift. Fortunately, they were not only capitalists, but men of high honor, who pushed the enterprise forward under the supervisory control of Messrs. Frank Denver & Boyd,—finished in a style of durability and beauty to excite the admiration of citizens and strangers. Front street was graded and planked twenty-eight feet from I to M street; J, from the river margin of the Levee to Twelfth street; K from the same margin to Eighth street; and Second, Third and Eighth streets from J to K, of Oregon fir and California pine, of three and a half inches thickness and fifty-six feet in width. Whole cost, including sewers, borne by a pro rata tax upon property holders, $185,460.

THE LEVEE.

SACRAMENTO has had several Levees since her first organization, but none which was worthy of the name, previous to the construction of that which at present surrounds and protects her from inundation. The Old Levee, as it is styled, was erected in 1850, commencing on the high ground near Sutter and running thence west to the Sacramento river; thence along and up the east bank of said river till it struck the American; thence along the north-east bank of the American, some two and a half miles; and thence eastward to high ground,—its whole extent embracing an area of nine miles. Its original dimensions were three feet in hight, six broad on the surface and twelve at the base—excepting immediately in front of the city, where these proportions were considerably expanded. This Levee, it was found, had neither strength to resist the immense volume of water which pressed against it, nor hight, nor solidity sufficient to prevent overflow and percolation. It was therefore abandoned—after large sums of money had been expended in repairing and patching it—for a better plan, which was adopted, and it is believed, will prove in every respect worthy the confidence bestowed on it.

The new Levee is composed of portions of the old embankment, with additions, and pursues a different boundary. Commencing at the Sacramento river, on I, it traverses the line of that street to the intersection of Sixth, where it changes its direction by an acute angle into Sixth, which street it follows north to the banks of the slough; thence along the slough in a north-east direction to A street; thence along A to Thirty-First street; thence south, inside of the slough, to the intersection of R street; thence along R street to the Sacramento river; thence along Front street—widened, partially planked, raised and materially strengthened—to the place of beginning. Its grade is twenty-two and a half feet above low water mark, with a surface breadth of ten feet, and a base varying from fifty to seventy feet.

The cost of the new Levee, or what is known as the I and R street continuations, was $95,000; and of the whole work, from its first commencement, about $600,000. C. W. Coote, Esq., was the Surveyor, and Mr. John Kirk, the Contractor.

A well-grounded hope is indulged by the citizens of Sacramento, when they gaze upon this apparently impervious piece of workmanship, that the day of her affliction is over, at least so far as relates to the probability of future overflow.

BRICK IMPROVEMENTS.

No fact has been more generally conceded, than that Sacramento sustains towards all other places in the civilized world, a marvelous pre-eminence, as the type of a spirit of enterprise not otherwise represented in the whole range of ancient or modern progress.

Instances are numerous of the destruction of fortifications, the subjugation of communities and the annihilation of armies, in a remarkably short period of time; but where can the converse of such a picture be found, excepting this single isolated example? Credible history presents its records in vain; human genius falters in the attempt. The glory of her fame is exhibited in bricks and mortar—in the courage and perseverance of her moderately endowed capitalists—in the noble energy of her mechanics, which have combined to render her the embodiment of an inland metropolis.

Different from others, who are content to abide the ordinary development of affairs, and to improve the advantages of time, after the models of former ages, the citizens of Sacramento created for themselves a new order of things by precipitating the events of time—conceiving, planning and perfecting projects never before dreamed of, either for the stupendous nature of their inception, or the astounding rapidity with which they were executed.

At a time when it was believed by the timid that her very name stood in danger of eradication, her dormant elements of resuscitation proved strongest. Her builders went to work. Neither fire nor flood had discouraged them; and looking around you, behold the flourishing evidence of their success! The boundaries of the Levee have been enlarged and strengthened; her streets are graded and planked; a general system of drainage adopted; her Fire Department re-organized; capacious and substantial engine houses put up; bridges built; streets opened; ditches filled in; public grounds laid out; splendid water works, (the first in the State,) erected; a contract entered into for lighting the city with gas; and other minor contracts disposed of,—all having a favorable tendency towards her future stability and perpetuity.

Imitating this public example, private citizens went to work, and in a period of two years effected a miracle, by erecting a vast city from the ashes of its predecessor,—containing upwards of two hundred brick edifices, as follows:—

BRICK BUILDINGS IN SACRAMENTO, NOV. 1, 1854,

Showing the year of their Erection, Cost, etc.

FRONT STREET.

1852. American Commercial Russian Ice Company's Warehouse, situated above mouth of Sutter Lake, 30 feet high, 60x80; cost $15,000.
1853. Water Works, erected by Corporation, (for particulars of which, see article, City Water Works.)
1852. Owned by S. C. Bruce; occupied by Hall & Brown, District and County Courts, County Officers, etc. 40x80, two stories.
1854. S. W. & E. R. Burke, Merchants—40x102, one story; $9,000.
1854. Owned by R. J. Watson, 26x100, one story, with cement basement; $10,000.
1853. No. 44—owned and occupied by L. P. & S. S. Crane, Druggists—two stories, 26x68; $6,000.
1853. Owned by Winans & Hyer; first story occupied by Barr, Griggs & Coursan, 20x90;
1853. Owned by S. P. Dewes, 20x80;
1853. “ “ “ 20x80;
1853. “ “ “ 20x100;—$64,000.
[The above embraces one block of buildings, eighty feet on front, and three stories high.]
1852. No. 52—owned by Gratiot & Co.; occupied by W. M. Hares & Co., Merchants—one story, 25x140; cost $17,000.
1853. No. 54—owned by W. L. Northam; occupied by G. O. Perry & Co., Merchants—one story, 20x100: $7,000.
1853. No. 56—owned and occupied by Barton & Grimm, Auctioneers—one story, 20x100; $6,000.
1853. Owned by Samuel Brannan; occupied by Mark Robinson & Co.—one story, 21x80;
“ “ “ “ King, Barroll & Co—21x80;
“ “ “ “ Whetstone & Co.—21x80;
“ “ “ “ —21x80;
“ “ “ “ —21x80;
“ “ “ “ —21x80;—$39,000.
1853. Owned by W. M. Carpenter—80x100, three stories, occupied by Messrs. Anderson, Hunter & Co., Jesse Elder, etc., and known as California Block, $45,000.
1849. Owned by Jacob Binninger—60x40, two stories, and known as the Green Tree Hotel, was the first brick building erected in Sacramento. Each brick in the building is estimated to have cost twelve and a half cents, or $125 per thousand; present value about $1,500; $28,000.
1852. Eureka Foundry, between O & P, owned and occupied by Bowsted & Co.—one story, 30x50;
1854. Same owners and occupants—two stories, 25x50;—$11,000.

I STREET.

1854. Lombard & Goss, between Front and Second, Foundry and Machine Shop—three stories, 30x50.
1853. Lombard Flour Mills—three stories, 30x40.
1854. County Court House and Jail, in course of erection, corner of I and Seventh, 80x140.

Corner of Seventh, County Court House, State House and Jail, of the following described dimensions; Extreme hight, 61 feet, 80x120; additional length of portico, supported by ten pillars, three feet six inches in diameter, by thirty-one feet six inches in hight. The ground floor is devoted to a prison, containing 49 cells, which are divided on either side of a central and interior surrounding passages. On the same floor are two separate offices, 16x18 feet each, containing fire-proof money vaults. The second floor is devoted to a Senate Camber, 57x30 feet, and an Assembly Room, 72 8x41 4, together with nine additional rooms for clerks, and other officers of the Legislature. Main entrance to second floor, 12 feet wide, laid with marble tiles, and ending in a flight of granite stairs. Style of architecture, Ionic. Nouges, Builder; Frank Denver, Superintendent; W. P. Henry, Plumber; cost $100,600.

J STREET—Front to Second.

1853. Owned by Samuel Brannan; occupied by R. Openheim, Merchant—1 story, 20x80.
1853. Owned by H. E. Robinson; Jones' Hotel, D. Jones, Proprietor—3 stories, 40x100; $32,000.

[Jones' Hotel.—Nearly opposite to Bennett's Masonic Building, and bearing a striking resemblance to it in proportions, stands the imposing brick edifice, erected in 1853, by H. E. Robinson, Esq., known as Jones' Hotel, and kept at present by the gentleman of that name. It is three stories in hight, well adapted to its present uses, and bears comparison with the first class public houses of the State, for its interior comforts and healthfulness. Its walls are thick and neatly finished. Its ground base 43x100 feet.]

1853. Owned and occupied by B. F. Hastings & Co., Bankers—2 stories, 20x85.
1853. Owned by B. F. Hastings; occupied by Wormser & Co., Clothiers—2 stories, 20x85.
1851. Owned by S. C. Bruce; occupied by Page, Bacon & Co., Bankers: District and County Courts, officers of County, etc.—2 stories, 40x80; $22,000.
1853. Owned by Wells, Fargo & Co.; occupied by Barker & Hamilton, Seed Store—2 stories 20x80; $7,000.
1852. Owned by Page, Bacon & Co.; vacant, 2 stories, 20x30; $7,000.
1854. Owned by A. A. Bennett; occupied by Paull & Co., Bath House, J. B. Starr & Co., Auctioneers, Masonic Fraternity—3 stories, 40x60; $41,000.

[Bennett's Masonic Hall.—The architectural beauty of this fine edifice has elicited general approbation. It was constructed in 1854, by Mr. A. A. Bennett, its present owner, who was among the first to venture the experiment of excluding water from his cellar by a compact brick floor, laid down in cement. The experiment proved eminently successful. An area of 40 by 75 feet is covered by this building, which is three stories high. Its first floor is occupied by Col. J. B. Starr & Co.'s Auction Room, Bennett & Paull's Metropolitan Baths, and a Barber Shop. Its second by a series of law and other offices. Its third as a hall for the Masonic Lodge of Sacramento.]

1853. Owned and occupied by Spalding & Johnson, Saloon—2 stories, 20x60; $20,000.

[Magnolia Saloon.—Kept by Spalding & Johnson. This fine fire-proof brick edifice on J street, between Front and Second, is two stories high, has a mastic front and covers an area of 20 by 90 feet, exclusive of a rear wing 45 feet in length.]

1853. Owned by John M. Rhodes; occupied by Union Printing Office—2 stories, 20x60; $7,000.

J STREET—Second to Third.

1853. Owned by A. Myer; occupied by Fletcher & Co., Clothiers—1 story, 20x60; $5,500.
1854. Owned by H. W. Stein; occupied by H. W. Stein & Co., Clothiers—1 story, 20x70; $4,000.
1852. Owned by E. P. Figg; occupied by E. P. Figg & Co., Merchants—2 stories, 21x100; $22,000.
1852. Owned and occupied by D. O. Mills & Co., Bankers—2 stories, 20x80; $9,500.
1853. Owned by J. M. Jessup; occupied by L. & S. Openheim, Variety Store—1 story, 20x70; $5,500.
1853. Owned by Carrol, Mowe & Trowbridge; occupied by Berry & Wade, Merchants—1 story, 20x80; $13,000.
1852. Owned by E. & M. Sheggs; occupied by Keyes & Co., Clothiers; Collins & Co., Hatters; 3 stories, 40x80; $30,000.
1853. Owned by C. Covilland; occupied by Newburg & Jacobs, Cigar Store—1 story, 15x40; $4,000.
1853. Owned by McCall & Moore; occupied by A. Despecher, Merchant—1 story, 20x100; $10,500.
1853. Owned by ———; 1 story, 20x100.
1853. Owned by Read & Co.; occupied by Read & Co., Bankers; Hiller & Andrews, Jewelers; Stow & English, Land Agents; Secretary of State and Lawyers' Offices; Post Office; C. Binney, Bookseller; Kirk Brothers, Booksellers; B. D. Fry, Justice of the Peace, etc.—2 stories, 80x160; $105,000.

[The Overton Block.—Covering the former site of the Overton Block, (and still retaining that designation, by courtesy), on the corner of J and Third streets, is the splendid brick structure of Loyd Tevis and J. B. Haggin, Esqs., with a frontage on J street of 60 feet, by 160 on Third, two stories high. The first floor of the J street front is occupied by Read & Co.'s Banking House, Hiller & Andrews' handsome Jewelry Store, and the Metropolitan Saloon, owned by George Wright & Co. Commencing with the Real Estate Office of Messrs. Stow & English on Third, the balance of the ground floor is separately occupied as follows, to wit: by C. Binney, Kirk Brothers and Winn & Taylor, Booksellers; B. D. Fry's Justice's Office; Pearl Saloon, and Post Office. The second story contains a large number of offices devoted to the law and medical professions, Secretary of State's Office, State Library, &c. This is a permanently built block, comfortable and convenient in all its interior arrangements, and affords a handsome per centage on the amount of the investment. It is thoroughly fire-proof, and beautified on the outside by a coating of gray mastic.

J STREET—Third to Fourth.

1853. No. 62—owned by W. T. Kennedy & Bro.; occupied by O. Beinstein, Clothier; Baker & Barber, Engravers; 3 stories, 20x80; $11,000.
1853. No. 64—owned by C. Myers; occupied by John Jenkens, Saloon—1 story, 20x70; $12,000.
1853. No. 72—owned by G. W. Bierce; occupied by A. Aurich & Co., Clothiers; 1 story, 20x50; $5,500.
1854. No. 76—owned by L. A. Booth; occupied by S. Hiller, Clothier—1 story, 20x60; $6,000.
1854. No. 74—owned by Booth & Reynolds; occupied by ———, $6,000.
1854. No. 78—owned by Boyd & Davis; occupied by James Daly, Saloon—2 stories, 26x50; $6,000.
1854. No. 69—owned by Fixary & Co.; occupied by John Bosler, Market—1 story, 20x70; $5,500.
1854. No. 71—owned by Hooker & Co.—2 stories, 20x100; $8,000.

[Orleans Hotel.—No Hotel in the State has a wider celebrity than the building under consideration, located on Second, between J and K streets. Originally it was constructed entirely of wood, by a company from the city of New Orleans. It was destroyed in the conflagration of November, 1852.

The present edifice was commenced immediately after that memorable event, under the proprietorship and auspices of Messrs. Hardenbergh & Henarie, and completed in just twenty days and six hours after the laying of the first brick in the foundation. The main structure is 85 by 50 feet, 3 stories high, containing 40 bed-rooms, exclusive of parlors and saloon on the ground floor, the latter occupying the entire area of the building. A billiard saloon, one story high, was added as a north wing, in July, 1853, 27 by 95 feet in proportions. A south wing was built in October following three stories high, containing a dining room 27 by 70 feet, and a kitchen on the first floor, and a Ladies' Ordinary, and 56 bed-rooms in the second and third stories--making a total of 96 bed-rooms, with sealed walls and excellent ventilation.

Between the two wings of the Orleans Hotel, is a court yard, laid down in sod, and containing a fountain in constant play,

The main building having been erected at a time when labor and material were high, cost $85,000. The whole cost, inclusive of lot and wings, amounts to $176,000. Additions and repairs are still being made, such as the ornamental feature of a mastic front, a portico, etc. An alteration has also been made in the grand saloon, by dividing into three compartments, used separatety for Stage Office, Reading Room, and Bar Fixtures. [First Congregational Church.—This splendid edifice, now approaching completion, is situated on the east side of Sixth street, between I and J. Its ground base is 62 by 88 feet, with a front central tower projecting nine additional feet, 18 feet broad, 50½ feet high from base, surmounted by a belfry 16 feet square by 22 feet in hight. Under the belfry is a clock dial, and in it is to be placed a bell weighing 1517 pounds, similar in tone to the one destroyed by the recent general conflagration. The church room has an area of 57 feet 4 inches by 77 feet 8 inches, 26¼ feet high in the clear, from floor to ceiling. Front and tower walls 20 inches thick; side walls 16 inches, with five buttresses on either side. There are two turrets on the front corners, ascending 44 feet from ground to top, and projecting 12 feet above the roof. The building contains three front doors and three windows. Attached to the rear of the main edifice, with a central opening on the first floor into the pulpit, is the pastor's study, two stories high, 17 by 26 feet in dimensions. The pulpit contains two fluted columns, to relieve the eye, between it and the recess behind. A front choir gallery, 8 feet above the floor, and 12 feet wide, is reached in front by two exterior entrances. Mr. A. C. Sweetser, Architect; J. H. Benton, Pastor.
